TAKE the VFD SURVEY

A group of Extension Educators from different land-grant universities across the country have put together a survey to see how the Veterinary Feed Directive (VFD) has affected livestock producers. To do this they are asking that all livestock producers respond to a nationwide survey to help determine if and how VFD rules have impacted animal health and use of antibiotics in animal feed, or had an economic impact on farms. Farmers, of any size, that raise food production animals are being asked to respond to this nationwide online survey. The information will be used by Extension to direct programming.

The online survey is completely anonymous and can be accessed through the following link:

The 2018 Annual Meeting was held on Tuesday, January 30, in San Antonio Texas where AGF welcomed new director, Kathy Daves Carr from Summerton, South Carolina to the board. Kathy is the representative of the American Boer Goat Association. All AGF directors serve 3 year terms.

Officer elections were held and the results are:

Anita Dahnke, Executive Director announced that Dr. Frank Pinkerton has resigned from the Advisory Council due to health issues. Dr. Pinkerton has been a staunch supporter of the American Goat Federation for years and we will miss the expertise that he has so generously shared with us. New to the Advisory Council is Dr. Ken Andries who has stepped down from the Board on which he has served for several years, including as President last year.

The AGF board is working with the American Boer Goat Association to review and verify ABGA educational materials and make them available on the AGF website. Anita reported that we are waiting for working documents from ABGA and that work will continue through first quarter 2018.

The board voted to continue membership in the following organizations:

GENETIC TEST for SCRAPIE RESISTANCE IN GOATS

The VGL Laboratory at UC Davis has made genetic testing for resistance to scrapie in Goats available to goat producers. The emphasis on possibly providing a chapter grant which would go to the specific FFA Group for participating in an AGF project rather than just to an individual.

Anita reported on the status of the FY-16 Scrapie/Q Fever grant which terminated in September, 2017 and provided a report on scholarships, sub grants and other activities. The Scholarship Program required that each applicant do an educational project on Scrapie and/or Q Fever. Two scholarships were awarded:

- John Rumsey, age 18, of Francesville, Indiana received a $750.00 scholarship which he will use at Purdue University where he is studying animal science.
- Mackenzie Taylor Plake, age 12, of Tipton, Indiana received a $750.00 scholarship which she will use for 4-H and FFA educational opportunities.

Sub Grants were awarded to:
- Kentucky Sheep & Goat Producers
- Southeastern Small Farmers Network
- Indiana Boer Goat Classic
- Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers
- American Dairy Goat Association

For the FY-17 grant, which runs from October 1, 2017 to September 30, 2018 AGF will be offering scholarships in addition to the educational sub grants that are available to organizations willing to participate in the sub grant program. Information on both is available on the AGF website: https://AmericanGoatFederation.org.

Dr. Diane Sutton, from USDA/APHIS and the National Scrapie Program Coordinator reported on the status of the Scrapie Eradication Program. The Goat Industry continues to make progress towards meeting the goals of the Eradication Program. That power point will be available on the AGF Website. The availability of genetic testing for scrapie resistance (alleles S146 and K122) was discussed. UC Davis is offering this testing currently and both ADGA and ABGA are offering discounted access to their members though their associations. While this testing has not been approved by USDA/APHIS as being formally accepted at this point, it appears to be a strong possibility that it will be in the near future.

Dr. Katherine Marshall shared the results of the preliminary survey that will be used in the upcoming NAHMS Goat 2019 study of the goat industry. She thanked AGF for helping get the word out to goat producers which resulted in the largest response they've ever had to surveys about goats. Information about the survey results and updates on the 2019 study will be available on the AGF website.

Dr. Gbenga Ojuma, assistant professor of economics and statistics from Prairie View A&M University
The current cost for this test is $30.00 per goat. The American Dairy Goat Assoc. and American Boer Goat Assoc. are offering discounted prices for this test to their members.

The Sheep & Goat Sector Meeting normally held in March, will be held in September this year, and AGF will attend that meeting. The ASI visit to the hill is being held on March 5-7 and AGF will have representatives in attendance. Anita Dahnke is on the National Goat Conference Committee. The conference will be held September 16-18 at Tuskegee University. AGF is also looking into joining the Cross Species FMD Team.

The possible pursuit of a goat check-off was discussed as AGF had been approached early in 2017 by individuals interested in pursuing one. After discussion and sharing information about the effort and number of people and funding involved, it appears that there is not enough support or manpower to continue at this time. The possibility of a goat check-off will be held open as an agenda item should more support become available in the future.

The AGF Board voted to pursue planning and funding for a Goat Center to serve the goat industry in the same manner as the Sheep and Cattle Centers serves those industries.

AGF is a member of the following associations:
> National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA)
> The United States Animal Health Assoc (USAHA)
> The International Goat Association (IGA)

The American Goat Federation is a 501(c)(5) nonprofit organization.
